Precipitated by Audit.

The disappearance occurred on the night of February 22, soon after an auditor had begun work upon the books Mr. Durkee had previously discovered that there was a shortage of cash or an error in the books of about $1000, and spoke to Prowse about it. An auditor was suggested and Frowse agreed to this and even went out shi maile arrangements for the books are wrong and I know I am not short." I am either short or the books are wrong and I know I am not short." Frowse had said to Mr. Durkee when the matter was first brought up. In making the arrangements for the sudditor he found that the auditor could not come for several days, so an appointment was made for In. m., 1'sh. 22. The auditor had said: "I can find the error in the books, If there is one, in four hours."

On the morning of the day fixed for the audit, Prowse leisphoned to a young girl to whom he was engaged and asked permission to take lunch with herself and mother, the young waman's father taking the moonday mend dewntown. He exhibited a large rolf of bills to them, claiming it contained $1000, and told them that he had sold an option on a milee for that some.
